Broken Lizard's Favorite Beers

The stars of Beerfest put their movie where their mouth is.

Maxim Online, Aug 2006
By Crai S. Bower

So they seemed liked the perfect pundits to weigh in on about America's favorite beverage. I asked two of the Lizards, director Jay Chandrasekhar and cowriter Paul Soter, to rank their favorite beers.

Ten Best Beers

10. Budweiser (In Bottles)

I know we are supposed to like microbrews and exotic foreign beers but I still like Bud in bottles best. It's like drinking Coca-Cola. Who doesn't love Coke? Plus it's the perfect beer for multi-bottle drinking since you can drink a lot of 'em and never fall down. I also like the sweat on the bottle. (J.C.)

9. Grolsch

The great thing about Grolsch is it's not only smooth and delicious but you can also use the cap as a roach clip. (J.C.)

Plus the bottle's perfect for storing pickled preserves. That way you recycle, which is good for the environment. A well crafted bottle. (P.S.)

8. Tecate

I played a game in Mexico where I paid 25 pesos to chuck a rock at bottles of beer. If I broke the bottle I got a can of Tecate. I got three rocks and stood only ten feet away. I broke so many bottles I could hardly drink fast enough to keep up. But if I missed or chipped the bottle I felt like a total pussy. (J.C.)

7. Czechvar

It is the one beer that is based on nothing but taste. Plus I am, by pedigree, Czech, so when I found out there was a Czech beer I was delighted. (P.S.)

6. Guinness Our friend Amy Cohen used to housesit for George Clooney. He always had a keg of cold Guinness on tap. We would go over to hang out and try to kill the keg. But this was Guinness, man, so we could never do it. (P.S.)

5. Chimay

Nine percent alcohol. 'Nuff said. (J.C. & P.S.)

4. Miller Lite

I like the tradition—it's what my father drank. I think of watching or playing sports, and Miller Lite just goes well with that. Light and refreshing and you can drink it all day long. (P.S.)

3. Fat Tire

If you prompt me for a microbrew I would say Fat Tire, if it still counts as a microbrew. Quite a nice little beer. But in general I'm not excited about microbrews. It's like when you want a soda, you don't want a Lime Ricky, you want a Coke. With microbrews, you never know what you're going to get and then you are too drunk to remember what it tasted like so you are right back at the starting point, staring at all these weird beers in the store. (J.C.)

2. Pabst Blue Ribbon

I have a soft spot for PBR because I visited the brewery when I was ten. Then I returned to my hotel and who did I meet? None other than Sha Na Na. That was quite a day. (J.C.)

1. Labatt's

Feels very Canadian, wintry and crisp like you're in a forest. But that might be because I take it camping a lot. Plus it was my first "legal" beer when, at 18, I went to Canada, which will always be special. (P.S.)
